

Seven Fields Primary School-Newsletter

Dear Parent/Carer

Does anyone else feel like me and can see a bit of light at the end of the tunnel? I have felt that this week especially. This Covid-19 pandemic is so unforgiving in who it targets but for the first time this week we heard how scientists have discovered a possible vaccine that is effective. Let's hope it is being released as soon as possible. Despite the protestations of President Trump complaining about losing the American election, we hear that the election officials have stood up and rejected his unfounded claim of fraud. Even the Scottish football team are going to the Euros! It is very poignant then that at the end of the week we hear of a story about light triumphing over darkness. Today in assembly I shared with pupils the story behind Diwali and the festival of lights. I believe the future that this world holds for us is not all doom and gloom. This is because I am lucky enough to see your children exemplify positivity on a daily basis. I have given out countless house points this week and many children are on their way to receiving their first bronze badge. I hope to give at least a few out before the end of the year. Today is National Kindness Day and in class children have been encouraged to complete anonymously where possible acts of random kindness. This may be from lending a pencil to another pupil or by opening a banana for a younger child (you know how tricky that can be) to supporting the school with sorting the library books or helping a teacher put up a display. I have seen all of these things this week and the fact that I have seen them with children doing them without being asked has been very positive.

So today, this weekend and next week. Be kind. See the light and goodness around you and remain, like your children, positive in your outlook.

Don't forget odd socks day next Monday in affiliation with Anti-Bullying week.
