

Seven Fields Primary School-Newsletter

Dear Parents/Carers

One week to go and the school is full of decorations and Christmas cheer however, the learning hasn't stopped. Pupils have been completing their end of unit tests this week and many have remained resilient throughout this process. On Monday, in assembly, I spoke to the children about the value of the week-Believing in themselves. This 'magnificent 7' value is a difficult one to conceptualise for children so, I showed them pictures of an oak blowing in the wind, sturdy and steadfast, a weeping willow that was bending and swooping to the direction of the breeze and then showed them what the elm tree did who tried to copy them both and ended up losing branches. The key message of course was to be yourself, be true to who you are and not to copy others but to believe in our own ability. Even though the pupils have worked hard this week, there has also been a heavy dose of fun and it has been wonderful to hear festive tunes in the hall and corridors. Next week is another big one for us with Christmas discos, parties and of course the amazing nativity plays. I am looking forward to my first Christmas at Seven Fields and I have to say it hasn't disappointed me yet! Amazing singing, amazing food, amazing support for each other. It is such a lovely place to be at the moment.

Christmas Dinner

Thanks to all of you who sent your child to school on Thursday for our Christmas dinner. There was such an excellent feeling and the meal provided by the Red team was absolutely fantastic.

As I write this the Pre-school and Nursery and their parents are heading to the hall for their Christmas meal. There really is such a family feel to the school at this time of year. Check out some of the photos below

Christmas Shows

Thanks to all those parents and carers who came to school this week to witness the Nursery and Pre-school shows. Well done to one and all involved. Its so special to see your child act out a part in a play for the first time. I bet there were a few tears shed! I'm looking forward to next week.
