

Seven Fields Primary School-Newsletter

Dear Parents/Carers

As I write this the sun is shining and the sky is blue. It seems a long way off from the start of the week which was catastrophically wet. Teachers have been taking the opportunity to teach children in KS2 about climate change this term and there have been some very interesting conversations about the impact of deforestation.

Although this has been technically a four day week. We seem to always try to fit five days of work in as the pupils have had so much time away from in class face to face teaching that we still need to plug the gaps they have from missing so much education this year. This is constantly in the back of our minds and I make no excuse for ensuring extra focus on key subjects that will enable pupils to learn in other areas. To this end, please continue to read with your child at home (or use MyOn) if they have forgotten their reading book. Please always look for the opportunities to correct your child's misconceptions in support of our drive to improve number recognition and language development. "warder bolls" seem to be over taking our "water bottles" for example!

Two years ago we received an Ofsted inspection that put the school in special measures. Hard to take at the time for someone who had only recently joined the school, I felt it was the correct decision. It was nice to see the write up of our school in the Swindon Advertiser this week that positively supported the work we are doing to improve citing the most recent Ofsted visit. We await our next inspection which should demonstrate the progress we have made. I hope you will positively support us in this endeavour when they next arrive. If you haven't seen the article it is available here. Rest assured the improvement journey does not stop and it will not stop.

Finally, I wish you all some better weather this weekend and hope that you are able to spend some quality time with your families.

Mr Booth

Next Friday (14th May) is Pyjamarama day

Children can come to school in their pyjamas to celebrate reading! The day is all about getting every child in the country to have a bed time story, so it would be great to hear about the stories the children like to read at home before bed!
